Mary G is Queen of the Kimberley and will appear in a once only royal performance at His Majesty's Theatre, at her majesty's pleasure, as part of NAIDOC celebrations on July 10, 2010. She will launch her second CD of new songs Pardon My Passion. Her men in waiting The G Spots will support her with musical accompaniment.

Our cheeky cherubic celebrity is not to be confused with or excused as a cross-dressing avatar. Rather, a mischievous Kimberley matron with only one aim in mind, to raise cultural awareness, rib the status quo, wobble the staid view of indigenous indiscretion, shake her booty of ribaldery, whip up a dancing groove, and cook on a queenly menu of laughter, mayhem and longing with no holds barred.

Mary G stars in two of her own eponymous SBS television series, her weekly national radio program, an ABC Message Stick feature and a movie role to date (Stone Bros). She pops up all over Australia, from Wave Hill to the Sydney Opera House, Mowanjum to Melbourne, Turkey Creek to Tasmania, Broome to Brisbane and most places in between. Mary G is the Kimberley's unauthorised representative to the nation and the world, so look out, there's more, Whaddagee!

Her regal robustness may well deign to accept interviews if you ask nicely (and grovel a bit for an audience) with questions only submitted regarding Mary G's plan to empower Indigenous Australia and liberate all the oppressed white fellas. Geddardyu! Mary G is coming to town!
